RHS Students, Romulus Rotary Place First in Salvation Army's "Bell-ringing Campaign"

In spite of the recent controversy surrounding bell-ringers and the Westland Mall, the Salvation Army managed to raise $86,000 (and still counting) of its $90,000 goal for the cities of Wayne, Westland, and Romulus - and part of the credit for that success goes to the Romulus Rotary Club and approximately 20 Romulus High School students.

During the week prior to Christmas, the Rotarians and students sought to raise money for 150 needy families in Romulus by volunteering their time as bell-ringers outside the Romulus IGA on Goddard Road. Altogether, the group was responsible for $3,175.84 of the $3,700 raised at the IGA, and their efforts were recognized at the Rotary's January 10 meeting, when Captain Mark Welsh of the Salvation Army presented a "first-place" trophy to the Club, and also presented the students with certificates of appreciation for their participation in the campaign.

The Romulus Rotary would like to extend a special "thank you" to the following people: Dennis Swaney of the

EDS Responds to RECAP Challenge

To the Editor:

This letter is provided in response to Mr. R.P. Lilly's statement published in your January 5, 1996 newspaper, in which he challenged anyone to show him "any positive effects that commercial deepwells have had on communities where they are located."

To respond to that challenge, we need to consider what the community consists of. Otherwise, if we were to consider only Romulus as "the community," then Romulus would need to have a liquid treatment plant for hazardous waste, an incinerator for hazardous liquids, and landfills for garbage and hazardous waste because the residents and businesses in Romulus need these disposal facilities to function in the City. For this purpose, then, the community would need to be southeastern Michigan because liquid wastes from Romulus currently are disposed of at facilities throughout southeastern Michigan.

So, now that we have appropriately defined the community as southeastern Michigan, we can now address Mr. Lilly's challenge.

The southeastern Michigan community currently disposes of hazardous liquid wastes at one of three types of disposal facilities:

- out-of-state incinerators,
- · out-of-state injection wells, and
- · liquid treatment plants.

Southeastern Michigan facilities that currently accept some of the liquid wastes consist of plants that treat the liquids chemically and/or biologically. Other liquids that would be handled by EDS (Environment Disposal Systems) are transported by truck to out-of-state commercial injection wells in Ohio and other states. The plants that treat hazardous liquids produce a wastewater that is discharged into the sewer system. This discharge is not clean water; it contains levels of contaminants that are allowed to be discharged into the sewer system. Once discharged into the sewage system, they can seep out of the sewer into the environment and drinking water because sewer pipes leak. The liquid that does not leak out of the sewer ends up in a river or a sewer treatment plant that creates a discharge into the river. Although these treatment facilities do minimize discharges to our environment, they still contaminate our surface and drinking waters.

These types of contaminated liquids should be recycled, rather than discharged to the surface and drinking waters. The problem is, recycling technology capable of handling such diluted wastes does not exist or is not even close to being economical. The world needs to continue to work towards recycling all wastes, but, until technology makes it practical to recycle, we should strive to keep contaminated liquids away from our surface and drinking waters.

Deepwell technology provides both a means of taking these wastes out of contact with surface and drinking waters and a means of recycling them at a later time when technology makes such recycling economical. Recycling would be accomplished by removing these liquids from the injection zone and recycling the wastes in the facility located at the surface.

Mr. Lilly continuously and erroneously takes the position that deepwells are bad. Not once has a Class I deep injection well built to the standards of EDS's existing Romulus well, in this type of geologic condition, ever contaminated any drinking waters.

Since deep injection wells protect our drinking water better than treatment facilities available in southeastern Michigan and offer a way to recycle when technology improves, they provide a significant benefit to the community. To not accept this position is like putting your head in the sand. We simply do not have the technology to recycle these types of liquids, and deepwells are the most protective way to handle them. To say or believe otherwise is to say it is okay to continuously dispose a limited amount of contamination into our drinking water versus trying to keep it completely out of the drinking water.

Having such a facility in Romulus will also attract other businesses to move in to the community due to a need to dispose of liquids economically. This will result in a large number of jobs in the area.

In addition to the above-mentioned benefits of deepwells, they also increase the overall safety of the area by reducing or eliminating the truck miles associated with hauling such liquids through southeastern Michigan to out-of-state locations.

In summary, deepwell technology applied in southeastern Michigan:

Adult Education Programs Can Pave the Way to Future Success

Because one of the areas most profoundly affected by our constantly changing society is the work place, today's adults need to take advantage of educational opportunities that can give them the edge in the job market.

A diploma or GED certificate in conjunction with technical training is a must for many positions; fortunately, the Romulus/Van Buren Adult Education program can help adult learners achieve these goals. The program's "total package" of high-school completion, GED preparation, and technical training in areas such as Microsoft Windows, Excel, Auto-CAD, small-engine repair, and nurseaide work allows adult learners to stay abreast of the technological, political, and social developments around them while maintaining a sense of their own history.

The Romulus/Van Buren Adult Education program's staff members are eminently qualified and highly competent to teach and counsel students, and are well aware of the challenges that face students in the real world. Their program's success is proven by the number of graduates who have gone on to make valuable contributions to their communities. As a result of their participation in Adult Education, these graduates have received promotions in the work place, pursued careers in the medical profession, obtained computer-operator positions, and generally increased their self-esteem. Other graduates have gone on to community colleges and universities.

Whether you want to complete the requirements for a diploma or GED, acquire valuable job skills, or just take a class for fun, Romulus/ Van Buren Adult and Community Education has something for you. Don't delay . . . register today! For more information, see the advertisement on the back page of this paper, or call 941-0610.

- Eliminates discharges of effluents from disposal into the surface and drinking waters.

- Provides a means of recycling the disposed liquids at a later date if and when such technology is feasible.

These same benefits occur wherever deepwells are utilized.

Additionally, from the standpoint of Romulus, the EDS facility could provide:

a potential royalty which the community could use to finance a recreation center or to improve its roads;

- a way to limit trucking of such wastes through Romulus by establishing enforceable truck routes; and
- a way to limit the risk of the City having to pay damage moneys to EDS and having to continue to pay legal fees to fight a battle that they may not be able to win.

Romulus cannot continue to tolerate "gadfly" antics. It is time to protect the City's finances and look at the real facts involved, not all of the statements about facilities that do not apply to deep injection wells.

RHS Students, Seniors Join Together for History Project

By Kimberly Studstill, Romulus High School student

Romulus High School students from Mrs. Uhring's freshman English class recently became involved with local senior citizens in an Oral History Project. The purpose of the project is to bring the elders of the community together with students from the High School to foster a better understanding between youth and seniors, and to reduce fears and stereotypes between the two generations. We believe that by having the students and the elders talk to one another, the elders would find that the students aren't really that bad, and students would find that the seniors have many interesting things to tell about their lives.

The project was planned to meet the needs of the school curriculum, the elders, and also the rest of the community. The students and elders will benefit by learning a great deal from each other, such as what it was like when the elders were young and what it's like to be a teenager now.

The senior citizens presented me with the memories of struggles and hardships. They talked to me about values and the need for respect as a teenager today. I never knew how much our elders could help us. I always thought that they were unaware of the challenges facing teens today; but they do know.

The community will have an opportunity to learn things that they probably didn't know about the lives of its elders for themselves by reading about the elders of Romulus in a booklet that will be published later in the Spring.

The Oral History Project is important to keep the knowledge of the elders alive. I will cherish the memories that my senior citizen shared with me and will look forward to learning more.

Students from Mrs. Uhring's English class met with local seniors at the Romulus Tower to interview them for their Oral History Project.

Decorating Colors for 1996 To Be Calm, Soothing

"Desperately seeking solace" might best describe consumers in the '90s. Time, or the lack of it, has sent them flocking to stress clinics, time-management classes, meditation courses, relaxation exercises, therapeutic massages. and to the sanctuary of their own homes.

It's also responsible for the colors they're choosing for that sanctuary. The trend toward warm, soothing colors in home decorating has been evolving since the beginning of the decade. This year will see more of the same, with colors that are classic, comfortable, and take heart weary traveler – timeless.

This is the forecast of Decorating Retailer, the trade journal of the National Decorating Products Association. Each year, the magazine polls top color experts in the decorating industry to determine color directions for the coming year. According to the almost 30 survey respondents, natural colors will lead this year's timeless palette, including the colors from earth, sea, and sky.

"People are spending more time at home - drawing comfort from their homes, enjoying simpler pleasures and they want to surround themselves with comfortable things that they can rely on," stated Leonard Ludovico of the Congoleum Corporation. "That translates into decorating products that mimic the natural world or draw direct inspiration from nature, because consumers see these products as timeless as well as beautiful. They convey a reassuring sense of permanence that is very much in demand."

"The accent will be on nature's best," concurred Kathe Holterman of Levolor Home Fashions.

"Nature and our need for security and serenity are influencing the palette; therefore, we'll see warm, comforting colors that have clarity and cleanness."

Among the upcoming colors Holterman named are loden, sage, terra cotta, buttercup yellow, and "the bluest greens of the sea."

Warm, tone-on-tone neutrals are the other big story for '96. According to Sally Morse of Morse Consulting, these colors are popular because they're "simpler, easier to live with, and softer to the

She added: "It's also a color palette that hides dirt more easily."

The neutral palette includes muted beiges, taupes, heathered off-whites, warm browns, soft grays for home exteriors, and a new washed sage color. Warm and inviting, they are the perfect respite from today's hectic life-style.

Besides their predictions for naturals and neutrals, respondents were nearly unanimous in selecting blue as the rising star in this year's palette. Also popular will be blue and yellow as the number-one color combination.

On their way out? Purple and hunter green, according to a few respondents, although they acknowledged their popularity en masse.

By Mary E. Clark

Special thanks to Audry Moomaw, Manager of the Romulus Tower, and to the staff of the City of Romulus Senior Citizens Center for contributing information to this issue's "Sassy Seniors" column. (Note: For further information about events at the Senior Center, located at 36515 Bibbins, call 942-6852.)

Free Tax Service for Seniors

Beginning February 7 and continuing through April 10, volunteers will be available (by appointment only) at the Romulus Senior Center each Wednesday from 1 to 3 p.m. to assist low- and moderate-income Romulus seniors with the preparation of their Federal and State 1040, home-heating, prescription, and property-tax forms. A list of those materials which must be brought to the appointment will be provided at the time of registration. Call the Center for more information.

Pinochle, Euchre at New Times

The Romulus Senior Center's pinochle club now meets every Thursday at 1 p.m. A$1-per-person donation covers cash prizes and refreshments.

The euchre club has also moved its play to a new day: Tuesdays at 1 p.m. Valentine Potluck

What better time to bring a dish and bring a friend than next month's "Valentine" potluck? Diners will enjoy a main dish of "Sloppy Joes" and other broughtalong goodies, plus a special performance by the Romulus Middle School choir. The event is set for Monday, February 12, at 2 p.m. Sign up at the Center. Lunch Out Hungarian cuisine will be the featured fare when the Romulus Senior Centertakes its next "Lunch Out" trip on February 16. Sign up at the Center.

For a transportation cost of $1.50, Romulus seniors can ride the Center's van to shop at Southland Mall on Friday, February 9, or at Westland Mall on Wednesday, February 28. Space is limited; payment of transportation fee reserves your seat on a first-come, firstserved basis. No refunds will be made unless there is a waiting list. Sign up at the Center.

Local Barber Is Permanent Fixture

An important factor in the continuing charm of Romulus' hometown atmosphere is the friendly intimacy of personal service that is still a tradition with many of the small businesses in our downtown area. This is especially true of Dave's Barber Shop, where owner Dave Rakotz's "personal service" credo has stood him in good stead for over a quarter of a century.

Dave first became a barber in 1964, working at Michael's of Trenton. In 1969, he seized the opportunity to open his own barbershop at Five Points in Romulus - a site which strongly appealed to him because of its location just across the main road from his home. Six years later, Dave took on the challenge of being his own landlord when he moved his barbershop to its present location at 37148 Goddard Road, which afforded better parking and more opportunity to expand. By the time Dave had completed four months of renovation work on his new building, the quaint 20x24' structure had become a model of atmosphere and convenience.

The shop soon became too much for one person to handle.

"As business picked up, I tried out several different assistants," Dave recalls, "but it was difficult to find someone whose skills and values measured up to the standard I wanted for my clientele. Finally, after a little persuading, I convinced my wife Judie to take classes at Virginia Farrell Beauty School."

When Judie completed her studies in 1977, she began working a chair next to her husband. It was soon apparent that his intuition had paid off: they became a winning team. Each helped the other, and their abilities seemed to complement each other so well that if one lacked a particular skill, the other was almost certain to have it.

The formation of this "dynamic duo" enabled Dave to continue the combination of expertise and genuine caring that his clients had come to expect. The two were proud to have earned a reputation of quality service in their home town - the town where Dave had lived since age four and where Judie had been born; the town where both had graduated from high school. It was important to them to give something back to the community where they had made their home and were raising their children.

Through the next few years, Dave and Judie continued with their work, overcoming occasional obstacles such as Dave's broken leg in 1986 (when he continued to cut hair through all but one week of his convalescence) and his need for a pacemaker implant (which Dave swears he's never had to use) in 1987. These experiences with trying to operate a burgeoning business under the pressures of ill health led Dave to put much thought into expanding his business once again.

In 1988, Dave's second expansion was accomplished in a few days of feverish activity on the part of the Rakotz family and some of their friends, plus the folks at McCraight Heating and Dad & Son Electric. The newly incorporated Dave's & Company - more than double the size of the old barbershop - was a full-service beauty salon.

"It's taken some time," says Dave, "but I have acquired a staff that believes in the quality of workmanship, service, and caring as much as I do. It's comforting to know that my clients will be well taken care of when I can't be there."

In fact, Dave is so busy singing the praises of his staff members - whose continuous efforts to expand their education include attending numerous seminars and hair shows to keep up-to-date on current styles and products - that it's difficult to get him to talk about himself. Fortunately, his family and friends are quick to fill in the details of Dave's contributions to the community: the fact that he has often donated his services to the needy; traveled to homes, hospitals, and convalescent homes to service the sick; and supported numerous community institutions and organizations, including our Romulus schools, the Romulus Little League, and the Romulus firefighters.
